In 1901, Annie Edson Taylor became the first person in history who survived a trip over Niagara Falls, (it's a name of three waterfalls in America) in a barrel. What is even more interesting, she did it on her 63rd birthday!

Why would someone her age want to do something this risky? Well, she needed money. Her husband died and she was poor. Annie felt that her future wasn't looking good. She believed that going over Niagara Falls in a barrel and surviving it would bring her fame and fortune. After the journey in a barrel (which took about 20 minutes), Taylor had only small injuries. She spent the rest of her life (almost 20 years) taking photos with tourists and telling people about the trip over Niagara Falls.
